The trial of Mr. Thomas Stevenson for keeping the alleged disorderly house known as "The Slide," at 157 Bleecker street, was umed this morning before Justice Martine

AS THE EVENING WORLD exposed the true opened it. But that act availed him nothing.

TOM STEVENSON

When the case was resumed this morning after a two days' intermission. Assistant District-Attorney Wanhope Lynn, for the people, had already shown pretty conclusively that Mr. Stevenson was the owner and proprictor of the "Slide," although his iceman, John McGrew, held the license, and a mysterious "James McLaughiin" was the reputed lessee of the establishment. Evidence as to the reputation of the den and its trequenters had also been introduced.

Lawyer Frederick B. House, of the firm of Levy, Friend & House, has been making trenuous efforts in his client's behalf, but it is not easy to see how he will be able to set up a successful defense in the face of the damaging testimony already given.

Mr. Stevenson looked nervous and worried gloves, six rounds, for a purse of $5,000. wife was not present.

Lawyer House objected to the introduction of any testimony as to the general character of the "Slide," but the Court overruled the

Her testimony, which very damaging to Mr. Stevenson, was given rejuctantly and with evident humiliation. Buttner's dive was among others exposed by THE EVENING WORLD, and Mayor Grant on Feb. 1 refused to reissue a concert license for it. Buttner then asked for an investigation. Mayor Grant, whose license had been abused by Buttner, is expected to conduct a vigorous prosecution of the case against him.

One Result of the Anti-Dive Crusade. For the first time in several years there were no prisoners in Jefferson Market this morning from the Mercer street station. Capt. Hyan sent a clean bill of return. Justice Meade congratulated Capt. Hyan and ex-pressed the hope that this happy state of affairs would continue.

DIED AS HE HAD LIVED, ALONE.

Eccentric Old Henry T. Gamage Found Dead in His Apartment. The body of eccentric Henry Ten Broeck Gamage is lying to-day in Undertaker Bur-ton's establishment at 28 University place. For nearly fifty years Mr. Gamage had lived the life of a recluse in a small room on the top floor of the University Building on Wash-and a jury in Part I. of the Court of General ington Square.

He died in that room some time between 8 Sessions. o'clock Friday evening and 5 o'clock Satur-day evening. When found he was scated in character of the den and has never since re- a chair at a table with one side of his head an lich from the flickering fame of a small amp.

Mr. Gamage made a business of collecting old paintings, and his room was littered with them. During his lifty years' occupancy of the apartment not more than two persons besides himself had been admitted there. He cooked his own meals and waited upon himself in every respect. The other tenants had become accustomed to his peculiarities, but the oldest of them had no more than a nodding acquaintance with him.

Mr. tramage is said to have been a class mate at Yale of Senator William M. Evarts, and through the latter's influence was some years ago appointed to a position in the Custom-House, from which he was removed by Pusident Cleveland. He had inherited a competency from his parents.

To-day a lawyer is searching among the dead man's effects for information as to Mr. Gamage's relatives. He is believed to have a brother somewhere out West. He was over seventy years oid.

By conferring the control of such institutions upon the trustees, a number of whom shall be required to visit the asylum or hospital at least once a week, it is believed that many of these abuses can be remedled. An opportunity will then be given of observing how patients are treated by superintendents and keepers in these institutions, and instances of crueity and ill-treatment will be, it is believed, much less frequent.

The bill also aims to secure better medical attendance for lusane patients, and by requiring the appointment of Jemale physicians and assistants for the special care of female patients introduces an entirely novel feature in the present system of treating the intensity of the saturation of these abuses can be remedled.
